

JACKSON COUNTY
STATE'S ATTORNEY'S OFFICE

ANNUAL REPORT UPDATED QUARTERLY

REPORT AS OF JUNE 2017

MICHAEL C. CARR STATE'S ATTORNEY

GUIDING PRINCIPLES FOR PROSECUTION OF CASES IN JACKSON COUNTY

The duty of a public prosecutor is to seek justice, not merely to convict. "The state's attorney in his official capacity is the representative of all the people, including the defendant, and it was as much his duty to safeguard the constitutional rights of the defendant as those of any other citizen." People v. Cochran, 313 Ill. 508, 526 (1924). The interest of the state's attorney's office in a criminal prosecution "is not that it shall win a case, but that justice shall be done. As such, he is in a peculiar and very definite sense the servant of the law, the twofold aim of which is that guilt shall not escape or innocence suffer. He may prosecute with earnestness and vigor--indeed, he should do so. But, while he may strike hard blows, he is not at liberty to strike foul ones. It is as much his duty to refrain from improper methods calculated to produce a wrongful conviction as it is to use every legitimate means to bring about a just one. Berger v. United States, 295 U.S. 78, 88, 79 L. Ed. 1314, 1321, 55 S. Ct. 629, 633 (1935).

With these principles as our policy, the following guidelines apply:

1. Prosecutors in our office may only bring charges in instances where it would be reasonable, based upon admissible evidence, including both direct and circumstantial evidence, for a jury to conclude that the evidence supports a conviction, beyond a reasonable doubt. Conjecture and speculation are inadmissible and may not be a basis for bringing a charge.
2. In determining what charge to bring against an adult in a non-traffic case, when an offense involves: a crime of violence; a crime committed by a prior felon; a drug offense involving violence or a firearm; a residential burglary; a serious property offense; an offense involving a child or a disabled or elderly person; or a public corruption offense, prosecutors should file the highest, readily provable offense, and any other charge which may reasonably support an alternative theory of guilt.
 - a. If a minimum mandatory sentence is called for by statute, that charge, if provable, should be filed and prosecuted and may not be dismissed or negotiated below the minimum mandatory sentence without approval of the State's Attorney.
 - b. If the reports and available evidence do not support bringing a charge pursuant to the principles established herein, no charge may be filed. If an arrest has been made under such circumstances, every effort should be made to immediately determine the existence of any evidence not mentioned in a report to support a charge, or, if none exists, to authorize the release of the person arrested.
3. In instances where the offense is not serious, prosecutors should avoid filing enhanced charges, or making allegations which would cause the charge to become a felony.
4. Except for statements that are necessary to inform the public of the nature and extent of the prosecutor's action and that serve a legitimate law enforcement purpose, prosecutors should refrain from making extrajudicial comments that pose a serious and imminent threat of heightening public condemnation of the accused and exercise reasonable care to prevent investigators, law enforcement personnel, employees or other persons assisting or associated with the prosecutor in a criminal case from making an extrajudicial statement that the prosecutor would be prohibited from making under Illinois Supreme Court Rules 3.6 or 3.8.

- a. Any statement by our office indicating that a person has been charged with a crime must include a statement that the charge is merely an accusation and that the defendant is presumed innocent unless proven guilty.

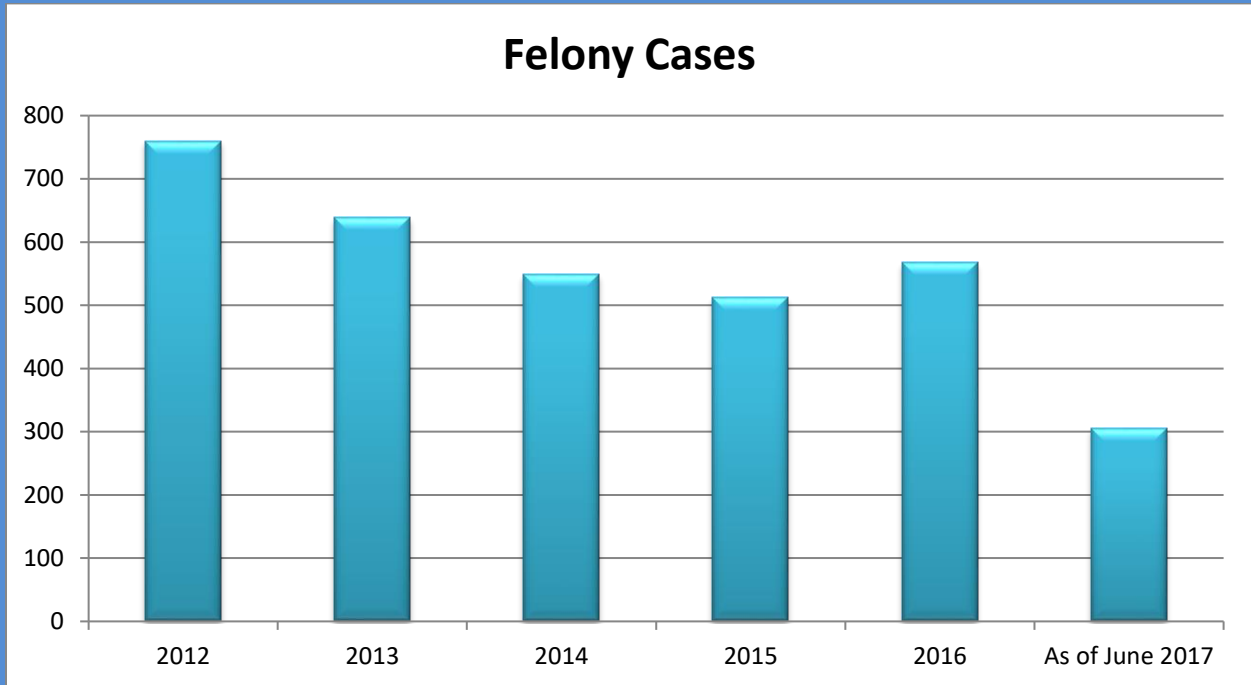

Case Filing Trends

Felony and Misdemeanor case filings have declined overall since 2012. Juvenile delinquency filings, traffic and serious traffic cases have remained relatively the same over the same period. Case filing for each year and for the first two quarters of 2017, are listed below:

Year	Felony	Misdemeanor	Juvenile Del.	DUI	Traffic
2012	760	832	91	312	9079
2013	639	637	90	235	9015
2014	546	618	85	288	9054
2015	513	674	65	263	7192
2016	568	654	96	283	6654
As of June 2017	305	290	44	128	2903

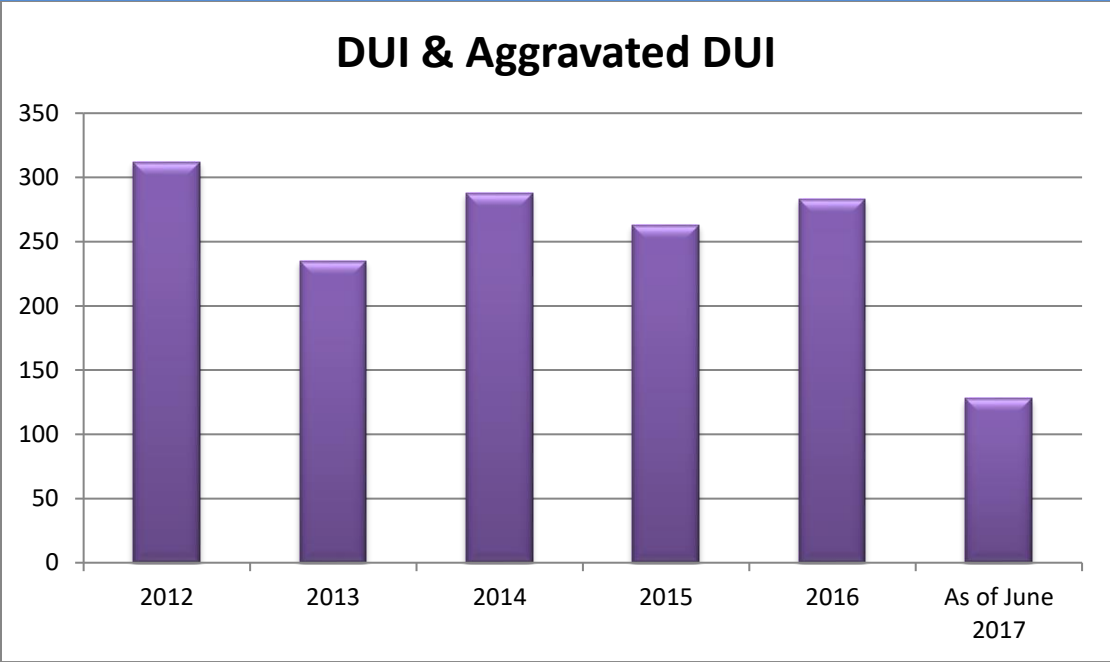

Breakdown of Case filings

These cases reflect criminal charges which were filed against juveniles. The number of cases filed since 2012 has remained relatively constant.

These are the least serious traffic cases and include petty offenses and business offenses such as speeding, no insurance, too fast for conditions and traffic sign violations. The volume alone is staggering for one assistant to handle so the more serious offenses are being handled by an additional Assistant State’s Attorney. Each of these cases represents potentially one to three or more appearances in court before the case is completed.

PRISON SENTENCING

The state legislature has determined that the most serious offenses committed by offenders against the public justify mandatory minimum sentences. These offenses include among others: Murder, Armed Robbery, Sexual Assaults, Home Invasions, Kidnapping, and Home Burglaries. When we believe that such an offense can be proved, our office will file and not reduce that charge or negotiate it in a way that would cause the sentence to be below the minimum sentence called for by the legislature.

In addition to mandatory minimum sentences, our office has also focused on offenders who have recently been released from prison. According to research released by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, about two-thirds (67.8%) of released prisoners were arrested for a new crime within 3 years, and three-quarters (76.6%) were arrested within 5 years.¹ So, we have focused on those charges committed by offenders who have already been convicted.

Our office does not impose sentences but does have the ability to influence sentences through recommendations to the court and by not dismissing or reducing serious charges which carry mandatory sentences.

- Between December 1, 2012, and March 31, 2017, 63 offenders have received prison sentences of ten years or more (125, 120, 85, 80, 75 (x2), 74, 40 (x2), 30 (x2), 27, 26 (x2), 25 (x4), 22, 21, 20 (x4), 19, 18 (x2), 15 (x3), 14 (x2), 13, 12 (x7) and 10 (x23).
- 84 offenders have received sentences of 5-9 years.
- 138 offenders have received sentences of less than five years.

Below is a list of people who, through their own decisions and actions, caused themselves to be removed from Jackson County for violent crimes, firearm or other serious offenses since December 1, 2012:

Nonfatal Domestic Violence

Domestic violence cases, by nature, continue to present challenges to the resources of police departments, the courts, our office and the county jail. By statute, police officers in Illinois are required to provide assistance to a victim of domestic violence whenever there is “reason to believe that a person has been abused by a family or household member and to use all reasonable means to prevent further abuse. . . .” 725 ILCS 5/112A-30. In most instances, law enforcement has interpreted this statute to mean that an arrest is mandatory, despite the fact that other alternatives listed in the statute are available. As a result, although there may be reasonable cause to make an arrest, in many instances there is insufficient evidence to support charges or convictions and the person who has been arrested must be released. This practice has led to a large number of arrests which cannot be sustained because they inevitably end up pitting one party’s word against the other’s without sufficient corroboration to support either version beyond a reasonable doubt.

On some occasions, officers have become frustrated at the inability to determine who the perpetrator was and have arrested both parties involved in the domestic violence incident. This practice has been condemned by domestic violence professionals and state’s attorneys throughout Illinois because of the inability to obtain testimony from witnesses who are both charged defendants in the same incident. From a safety perspective, a victim who has been arrested after calling for help in a domestic violence incident will be less likely to report future acts of violence against her if she believes that it will result in her arrest.

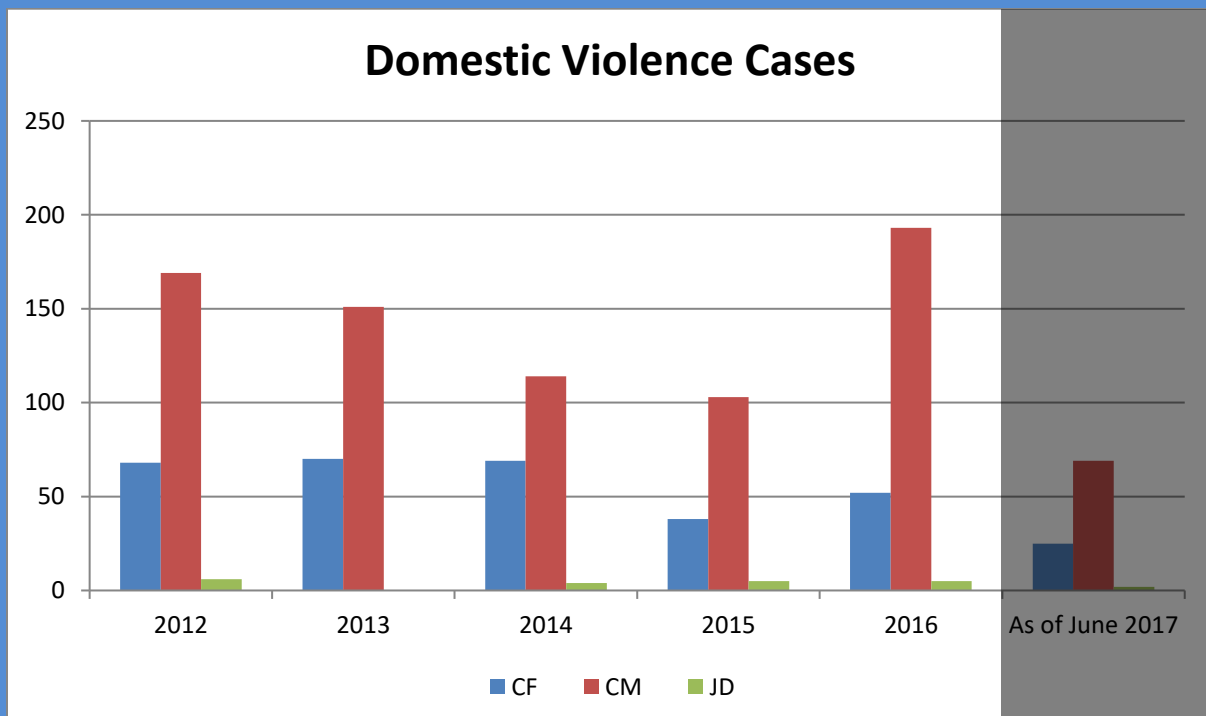

It is the policy of this office to support lawful arrests by law enforcement but assistants have been instructed not to file a criminal case in circumstances where the evidence does not support a charge or conviction or in instances where the victim has requested that no charges be filed. Our victim witness advocate has been trained in advising and assisting victims with orders of protection as an alternative to prosecutions.

Case Filing Trends

With the exception of 2016, the total number of Domestic Violence cases filed in Jackson County has declined since 2012. Overall, the numbers are still well below the totals for 2012.

Dismissals and Declinations of Domestic Violence Prosecutions

The overwhelming majority of the cases submitted to our office in this category involve minor or no injuries at all and are declined (before filing) or dismissed (after filing) at the victim's request or because the offense cannot be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. Many declinations involve reports submitted by officers who have not made an arrest because the officer cannot make a determination about who the aggressor was. Of the 2,334 cases submitted to our office by police agencies for review since December 2012, 1,191 have been declined before filing, and 777 cases have been dismissed after filing. Of those which have been filed in court, 357 have resulted in convictions and only 9 have resulted in acquittals. Dismissals of cases have declined generally since 2012.

Domestic Violence Diversion Program

Our office, in collaboration with the Batterers Intervention Program, which is under the auspices of the Carbondale Police Department, has developed a diversion program to deal with minor, first time domestic violence offenders. Our office has agreed to recommend first time offenders, where the injury is minor and with the consent of the victim, to participate in the program with the understanding that no charges will be filed upon successful completion of the program. The Batterers Intervention Program is modeled after the Duluth Model and is facilitated by various networking partners within the Violence against Women Grant agreement. As of July 2017, there were 24 active participants in the program.
